Municipal Airport Will Be Dedicated Sunday, July 26th

Flying Circus to Put on Program for Southwest Arkansas

A PARACHUTE JUMP Chamber of Commerce and Legion to Advertise Program Heavily

Hope's municipal airport on the Washington highway at the city line will be formally dedicated Sunday, July 26, with a flying circus and public celebration sponsored jointly by the aviation committee of Hope Chamber of Commerce and Leslie Hudleston Post No. 12 of the American Legion. The hours will be 3 to 6 p. m.

The date was set at a luncheon meeting of Chamber of Commerce representatives and the Legion, Wednesday at the Capital Hotel.

Further plans will be made at a noon meeting to be held Thursday.

Plans Available
Possibly a dozen planes will be drawn here for the big event. The 154th Observation Squadron has agreed to send three ships, and half a dozen or more civilian planes will come.

A negro parachute-jumper, one of the most popular stunts in aviation today, is being arranged for from Memphis. Among other feature events being discussed are a plane race around temporary pylons to be erected near the field, a balloon-bursting contest, "dead-stick" landing contests and airplane juggle races.

It is proposed to distribute flight tickets retailing at $2 each to Hope merchants, to be distributed as premiums to their trade, each ticket entitling the holder to a 5-minute flight in one of the visiting airplanes.

Admission to Be Charged

Admission will be charged at the field, 10 cents for adults and 10 cents for children, the proceeds to go to a fund to erect a hangar and make other improvements on the airport.

The Chamber of Commerce and Legion are rushing plans to completion and expect to advertise the event over a dozen Southwest Arkansas counties. They expect to draw several thousand people to Hope Sunday, July 26.

Prisoners Refuse To Work For Jailer

Three Youths Sentenced For Murder Await an Appeal

JONESBORO, Ark.—(AP)—Because they refuse to work at the state penitentiary, the three youthful convicted slayers of a Craighead county deputy sheriff are back in the county jail here.

They are Charles and Raiford Rainsome, brothers, and Charles McElroy, each sentenced to 21 years imprisonment for killing Deputy Sheriff Jenkins in 1928.

The youths, after several continuances, were convicted and sentenced recently. They immediately appealed to the supreme court, but were unable to make bond for their release pending the appeal.

After being held in the county jail for about a month, they announced their willingness to enter the penitentiary. Acting upon advice of an attorney, who was upheld by Attorney General Hal L. Norwood, the boys refused to do any work at the penitentiary, claiming they still, technically, were in custody of the county sheriff until their appeal was decided.

Penitentiary officials would have none of this, however, and sent them back to the Craighead county jail.

Deputy Sheriff Jenkins was shot and killed in November, 1928, while attempting to arrest the trio on liquor charges. All of them, at the time, were under 21 years of age.

Fort Smith Sued By Woman for $800

Alleges Building Was Torn From Her Property

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—The city of Fort Smith, Mayor Fagan Bourland, and former Police Chief H. B. Patterson have been sued for $800 damages by Mrs. Alice McLean who alleges a four-room building on her property was torn down by the city. She charged the building was torn down without her knowledge and without just cause.

Local Grocers to Hold Salad Show

Special School Next Week Discussed at Dinner Tuesday at Barlow

Between 40 and 45 merchants, their wives and guests represented virtually every grocery store in the city at a dinner given by Miss Eva Gorman and E. B. Barrett of the Wesson Oil and Snowdrift company, of New Orleans, Tuesday night at Barlow Hotel.

The dinner was served as a get-together meeting of Hope grocersmen who will sponsor a three-day salad school, beginning Monday at 4 p. m. in the banquet room of Hotel Barlow, under direction of Miss Gorman.

The school is free and all are invited to attend. Friday's Star will carry an announcement.

Wickersham Body Denounces Laws

Mooney-Billings Case Is Cited as Shocking to Sense of Justice

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Wickersham Commission Wednesday denounced as "shocking to one's sense of justice" the laws under which the famous Mooney-Billings case was conducted.

In a formal report to President Hoover on criminal procedure methods the commission cited the case arising out of the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco as one in which motions for a new trial "were held inadequate to prevent injustice." It made no direct recommendation to Hoover that the case be reopened.

Garland City Span Opened For Traffic Wednesday Early

New $500,000 Structure Over Red River Added to Highway System

DELAYED BY BLAST

Toll of 50 Cents to Be Charged Automobiles Over State Bridge

TEXARKANA.—Forging another link into the highway system of Arkansas, the $500,000 Garland City highway bridge spanning Red river was opened to traffic at 8 a. m. Wednesday. It was announced Tuesday by the Arkansas highway commission.

Opening of the bridge, a state-owned toll structure, will end nearly two years labor and will replace the privately owned ferry at Garland City, 23 miles east of Texarkana.

Construction of the steel and concrete bridge began two years ago, and was virtually completed when the middle span was hurled into the river by a dynamite charge on September 3, 1929.

While investigators clung to the trail of the vandals, resulting in the conviction of one man, construction of another span began and the finishing touches to the new bridge were completed during the past few days.

Traffic was allowed to pass over the new span July 4 but no toll was charged, the action being a gesture by the highway commission to herald the completion of the bridge.

The Garland City bridge will be operated much after the fashion of the new span at Fulton, which was opened last year. The same toll of 50 cents for automobiles will be charged. Other toll charges will be: 1/4 to 3/4 for trucks, 75 cents; four tons or over, $1; one ton trailers, 25 cents; over one ton trailers, 50 cents; busses, plus five cents for each passenger, $1; motor cycles, 10 cents; livestock, five cents per head; wagons and buggies, 25 cents; and loaded log wagons, $1. No charge will be made for pedestrians.

It is one of the major highway links serving the Southwest Arkansas counties: LaFayette, Hempstead, Clark, Nevada, Columbia, Ouachita, Union, Calhoun, Bradley, Ashley and Chicot.

Practically all work on the bridge has been completed. General surfacing on the Miller county approach is nearly finished, contractors estimating its final completion within the next few days. The LaFayette approach already has been completed.

The bridge proper is composed of three 300 foot steel spans on concrete piers. The middle pier stands 40 feet above the highest water level ever known on the river. The total length of the bridge and approaches is 1849 feet. The traffic lane on the structure is 20 feet wide.

Cashier of Store Slugged, Robbed

Masked Thug Takes $550 From American Grocery Co. in Texarkana

TEXARKANA.—A masked man slugged and robbed K. C. Ketcherside, cashier of the American Grocery Company of Arkansas, of $550, the cashier sat alone in the office at noon Tuesday. A fellow worker found Ketcherside unconscious on the floor.

Walking briskly into the office, the man passed through a gate leading to the desk where the cashier was counting the money, flashed a pistol and commanded Ketcherside to "stick 'em up." As the cashier rose from his chair with his hands over his head, he roared a slug and with what police think was a sandbag.

Ketcherside said he is not certain he would be able to identify the man, as the mask covered his face completely.

Lavaca Resident Finds Queer Stone

Resembles a Petrified Indian Moccasin It Is Said

LAVACA, Ark.—(AP)—Oliver Kear, living about five miles from here, has an interesting rock he found near his home. The rock is about seven inches long, three inches wide and one inch thick. It has the general appearance of a petrified Indian moccasin if it were possible for leather to petrify.

The rock resembles a child's moccasin flattened out and there is an opening where one would be in a moccasin. The stone is hollow as a moccasin and is 1 1/2 by 1 1/2 and tip inside is smooth and somewhat polished.

German Banks to Meet Pay Rolls

Money to Be Turned Loose for Mid-July Business Pay Rolls Only—President Von Hindenburg Returns to Berlin to Rally Nation—Government Will Stop Conversion of Mark Into Foreign Money

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—President Von Hindenburg came back to the capital Wednesday from his country place to take a hand in lifting Germany out of her financial crisis.

Soon after his return it was learned on good authority that the nation's banks, temporarily closed Tuesday by a government decree, would be opened Thursday to meet the mid-month pay roll demands of Germany industry and commerce.

Even the Darmstaedter and National bank, which suspended payment at the beginning of the week, will be opened for pay-day.

Meantime the cabinet, debating ways of meeting the situation without inflating the currency, definitely discarded a plan to put the domestic Renten mark back into circulation.

Germans Proceed Cautiously
BERLIN.—(AP)—The German cabinet adjourned midnight Tuesday without determining upon a general relief program for its closed banks and threatened financial structure.

It had been anticipated that the cabinet would consent to a certain amount of currency inflation to relieve the populace. One of the principal measures suggested was the issuance of domestic Renten marks based not upon gold but on mortgages against German agriculture and industry.

But on Wednesday the cabinet definitely rejected this idea.

Another proposal is to lower the present requirement of 40 per cent gold coverage for German money, but confining circulation to the nation's actual needs. Still another proposal is the circulating of large quantity of silver money—the main purpose being to avoid another flood of paper marks, such as struck Germany between the time that the empire fell and the republic went on a gold basis.

To Use Iron Hand
The republic is reported to be planning to handle the financial emergency with an iron hand. The Hitlerite Nationalists or German Fascists had most of their funds tied up in the Darmstaedter and National Bank, and are supposed to be politically paralyzed; but republican police are watching them closely for fear of an attempted uprising of the monarchist faction.

President Von Hindenburg is expected to state the government's demands from all private citizens in plain terms, emphasizing the fact that Germans must refrain from further cashing in of local credits in favor of foreign currency, which has been draining Germany of her gold supply.

The president, grizzled old leader of World War days, is preeminently strong with the Reichswehr, and is expected to swing the German people to whatever policy is eventually decided upon.

Lumber Receiver Pays 1st Dividend

Lloyd Spencer Pays Preferred Claims and 50 Per Cent of General

All preferred creditors and 50 per cent of the amount of general claims against the Hope Lumber company were paid Wednesday by Lloyd Spencer, receiver for the mill property.

The actual mill and mill-site were sold last month to Williams & Sons, Sheridan lumber operators who are rebuilding the local plant. The revenue from the sale of the mill and town lots and other liquidating moves by the receiver have furnished the revenue for this first payment to creditors.

The preferred claims have been paid in full. Addressing a letter to holders of general claims, Mr. Spencer wrote Wednesday:

"I enclose check covering the first dividend of 50 per cent. It will probably be several months before another dividend is paid. I still hold a small amount of cash and approximately 5,900 acres of land, and if I can sell this land for as much as $2 per acre, all creditors, in my opinion, will be paid in full."

4-H Club Rally Day Held at Lewisville

Many Towns in Lafayette County Represented at Big Celebration

LEWISVILLE, Ark.—A successful 4-H club rally day was held in Lewisville. The program opened with a general assembly in which 225 representatives from Lewisville, Bradley, Buckner, Walker's Creek, McKamie, Midway, Union, Canal, Hackney and Stamps clubs received their 4-H caps and were assigned to their places under their respective banners.

Pictures were taken as the club members formed into a parade led by J. L. Wright, district agent, extension service, College of Agriculture of the University of Arkansas, and Miss Katharine Gratian, county home demonstration agent.

Jack Strange and S. Morgan, of Stamps, arranged in comical costumes and assisted by Lance Parks and Harry Wheelis as clowns, contributed entering features to the march.

The parade passed through the principal business streets, terminating at the Lewisville high school auditorium in time for the continuation of the day's program. The auditorium, seating over 400 people, was filled with club members, their parents and friends.

No More Bonds in Arkansas For 1931

Agreement Revealed in Little Rock Affects Hope Armory Projects

LITTLE ROCK.—With the sale of its $15,000,000 highway note issue last week to Halsey-Stuart & Co., national bond dealers, the State of Arkansas pledged itself not to float any further bonds during 1931, it was revealed here Tuesday.

State Construction Commission, in the state and the bond house were the State Debt Board and special boards in charge of highway, hospital construction and pension bonds.

The no-more-bonds agreement was revealed with the discovery that the State Construction Commission, in charge of building the new hospital for Nervous Diseases near Benton, had sold $1,350,000 worth of short term notes a month ago—of which there was no public announcement at the time.

Dated June 1, the notes were sold for par at 5 per cent interest, and will fall due March 1, 1932. Act No. 180 of 1929 created the construction commission and authorized it to issue up to $3,000,000 worth of bonds for the new hospital building. The commission made the issue in short-term notes, however, a customary procedure when the bond market is bad as at present.

The hospital notes or bonds are to be retired out of part of the proceeds of the state income tax. The commission sold $750,000 worth of bonds two years ago, purchasing land near Benton for $105,000 and spending the balance of the money for construction of two farm colony units and a waterworks.

Although official advices are lacking, it is understood that the suspension of bond issues for the balance of 1931 eliminates the Hope armory project at least for this year.

There was a well-defined rumor regarding the home agreement, a month ago, at the last session of the city council a letter read from Governor Parnell stated definitely that the armory bonds could not be sold before October 1 at the earliest. It was contended by some at that time that the real date would be January 1, apparently sustained by the agreement brought to light in Little Rock yesterday.

Nashville School Bids to Be Received

Contract For New Structure Expected to Be Given Monday

NASHVILLE, Ark.—Sealed bids for the erection of a proposed new high school building for Nashville will be received by the board of directors of the school district up to noon next Monday, and it is hoped that the board will be able to let the contract for the building soon after the time.

The proposed building is to be a modern structure in every detail, and of the most approved type for high school purposes. It will be two stories, with a basement, and will contain ten class rooms, a large auditorium and offices for the superintendent and faculty. The building is to be erected on the present athletic field. It will face west and about center on Sunset avenue which runs west from Fourth street. This street is closed through the athletic field, which lies between Third and Fourth streets.

The New York state insurance law, incidentally, was adopted about the time of the 1907-08 panic, when a widespread failure brought about a situation in that state similar to the Arkansas panic of last fall, both panic closing out many insurance companies which were involved in banks or the common stock of industrial concerns.

Legislators Want More State Jobs

Alabama Senate Seeks to Virtually Double Its Membership

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—The Senate of the Alabama legislature Tuesday voted 22 to 11 to submit to the voters in 1932 a constitutional amendment to increase its membership from 35 to 67.

The measure has passed the House and will be submitted in the general election in 1932.

In the House a measure to make Alabama highway code companion bill providing for a drivers license of $1 for three years for each automobile were indefinitely postponed.

Both houses overrode the veto of Gov. B. M. Miller on the Sanders act to authorize circuit court judges with the concurrence of the circuit solicitor to probate sentences of 10 years or less and authorizing appointment of probation officers. The measure now becomes law.

The Tuntail bill for a two cent increase in the gasoline tax until October 1, 1932, when one cent will be dropped, was reported favorable to the House. It will be called up for final passage on Thursday.

Arkansas Audit Board Expected to Meet Soon

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Members of the state highway audit commission are expected to meet again soon to determine whether they will attempt to obtain an audit of the highway department as provided by the act creating the commission and appraising $100,000 for its use.

Chancellor J. M. Futrell, of Paragould, chairman of the commission, has asked all members to designate a date when they could attend a meeting at which future action will be considered.

Wednesday brought the third consecutive day of rain to Hope and Hempstead counties, with continued moderate temperatures.

A light shower descended on the city during the morning, followed by a heavier rain at 2:45 in the afternoon.

Monday turned loose a cloudburst below Putnam, in the southern end of the county, and there was a general rain over the county Tuesday.

The Weather Man's forecast from Memphis is for cloudy skies and thunder showers Wednesday night and Thursday with a storm warning sent out to farmers in Louisiana.

HOPE STAR AND DAILY PRESS, HOPE, ARKANSAS

by MABEL McELLIOTT
DIRECTOR NEA
SERVICE UNIT

"It's all so confused," she murmured, uncertainly. "I hardly know what to think, what to believe. Anyhow, the fact remains you're bound, Muriel, to seeing it that. Only the other day she asked me to be one of her bridesmaids—"

The man's face twisted in a sneer. "She asked you that? She knows I'm mad about you and she's turning the knife."

"She does mean to hold you to it then?" Liane asked.

He threw out his fine, well-shaped hands in a gesture of despair. "You know how she is. Blows hot one day, cold the next."

"Well, it can't make any difference now, anyhow," Liane said dully. "Because—I've promised to marry another man."

He stared. "You! Sweetie, you haven't!"

Liane twisted her fingers. "Yes, I have. It's done."

"You don't want to tell me who it is?"

"Not now. I can't. It's a secret."

He flung himself about. "Ah," he was mistaken, then. I thought you cared, thought I'd seen something real in your eyes. I was wrong. Forgive me; I've been wasting your time."

He bowed low. Liane started to speak, started to fling out her hand. The moment was shattered. Tressa Lord, trailing her lacey draperies, entered the room.

"Ah, a tete-a-tete! So sorry. Her laugh was brittle.

"Not at all," Van's laugh was ugly. "Miss Barrett was just sending me about my business and, rightly, too. You arrived in the nick of time."

Tressa gave Liane a sharp glance of inquiry. "At your old tricks, Van?" she said, letting him light the cigarette she had thrust into a jade holder.

His handsome face in the flare of light looked lowering.

"You flatter me, my dear," he said, lightly. "I'm growing old. My technique is out of date. Can't try it with these youngsters."

"Your technique always has been grand, love."

"Charming of you to say so," he dawdled.

"Truly, I'll never forget how much I was about you the summer before the swimmer before last," said Tressa mockingly. "I thought you were simply swell. Prince Charming. The first time you 'kissed me—"

Van winced with a side glance at Liane who stood white-faced and uncomfortable.

"Now you are flatter me," he said. His voice was low. "You know I never stormed that citadel."

"Ah, my dear, would you fling a lady's memories in her teeth?" Tressa's green eyes shone with malicious pleasure as she watched him squirm under her railway.

Liane, with a low toned exclamation, slipped from the room. She passed Olive on the stairs.

"You're not leaving us so early?" he asked in polite concern.

"I must. I have a fiendish headache."

Not only neck and neck, but step and step, these two horses were pounding down the final stretch of the "Quarant", in the Eastern Horse Club race at Brookline, Mass., when the camera caught this unusual picture. So perfectly matched were their position and gait that it looks almost like a double exposure. But Gwynnlyn, in the rail position, put on a final burst of speed and won by a whisker over Handy, shown at left.

Fortifying
JUDGE EMIL FUCHS drew a lot of laughs a couple of years ago when he told the world he was going to give Boston a ball team. He was a nice fellow, according to the consensus of opinion, but what he didn't know about baseball would fill the Congressional library. The judge became the target of wisecracks.

He couldn't get anybody to manage the team. He offered John Evers, the job, but Johnny had another engagement. He offered it to Maranville, but the Rabbit had all the managerial experience he cared for with the Chicago Cubs. Finally he told the world he would manage the team himself and the baseball world laughed at that one, too.

late, however, the Judge is becoming a pretty hard guy to laugh off. He hired Bill McKechnie to direct his gang of hustlers and rookies. Bill is one of the smartest managers in baseball. Then the Judge started trading and buying. The profit of Graves' Field went for new talent. The Judge established a reputation as a David Harum. His trades were so successful that the other managers steered clear of him when he started to talk about a swap.

The other day he wrote a check for $35,000 payable to the Monarch ball club and brought a new third baseman to the Braves—Bill Urbanski. "What have I got with Urbanski?" said the Judge the other day, "only the best defensive infield in this league—that's all."

Urbanski, besides being a star player, has been hitting .353 for U. S. G. A. statistics reveal that there are more than 290 municipal golf courses in operation in 39' states and the District of Columbia, besides the hundreds of private and fee courses. . . . Illinois cities own and operate 29 public courses. . . . New York state is second highest with 23. . . . and Michigan third with 21. . . . Chicago has eight courses, more than any other city. The first mention of golf in this country appeared in the Charleston Gazette, Oct. 13, 1795..

Team. All three of the Braves scouts, John Evers, Jack Slater, and Dick Rudolph, report favorably on Urbanski, and they have to be pretty good to please those fellows, especially Evers.

Still Looking. IN a few years it will be necessary to replace the aging Sheely at first base. It can hardly be expected that Rabbit Maranville will go on forever, though you might be able to get some hits on it. Urbanski brings new life blood to the infield and furnishes the club with the luxury of capable reserves in the persons of Neun, Richbourg, Dreesen and Randy Moore.

With a little more pitching power and a catcher, the Braves will be in the position of permanent contender. The Judge is looking for that talent now.

Aged Son of One of Barnum's Famous Siamese Twins Now Await End

MEDICINE LODGE, Kan.—Patrick H. Bunker, 81-year-old son of one of P. T. Barnum's famous original Siamese twins, Ing and Chang, wants to see his children.

Bunker, inmate of the county home at Medicine Lodge, is growing feeble. Somewhere in the United States he hopes his six children may still be living. This man with a life story stranger than any fiction has only one remaining ambition and that is to see them once more.

Bunker's father and his uncle came from Siam to America in 1830. They were joined together by a membranous band extending from the breastbone of one to that of the other. It was Ing and Chang who were responsible for the coining of the phrase "Siamese twins" to mean children physically attached to each other, regardless of what race. Barnum, the famous showman, exhibited them throughout the United States and Europe.

Ing was Bunker's father. "My father and his brother never quarreled," Bunker is careful to explain. "Lots of people have said to me they've heard Dad and Uncle Chang used to fight. It isn't true."

How He Got His Name
The aged man is asked frequently to tell why the son of a native of Siam should have the surname "Bunker" and be called Patrick.

"It was like this," he says. "As soon as my father and uncle arrived in New York they were put on exhibition. It became necessary for them to be naturalized. They went to the government office and gave their names as Ing and Chang, the only names they'd ever had. Someone told them they must have a surname. A man named Fred Bunker was standing near and the suggested they take his name. That was how my father became Ing Bunker and my uncle became Chang Bunker."

The twins were born about 60 miles from Bangkok, Siam, in 1811. When they were 18 an American ship captain saw them bathing in a river. Realizing what a curiosity they would be to the American public he arranged to bring them to New York. Barnum made them the featured attraction of his show and gave them wide-spread publicity.

Twins Wed Sisters
Bunker remembers accompanying his father on several of these tours. Despite their huge incomes from these trips the twins' money disappeared rapidly. At the height of their wealth the twins married Sallie and Adelaide Yates, of Dutch and Irish descent.

Tenders for Treasury Bills Asked by Mills

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Acting Secretary Mills Sunday invited tenders for $10,000,000 of treasury bills which will be sold to the highest bidders on July 15.

The bills will be dated July 17 and will mature on October 15. The issuance of the bills, which will be sold on a discount basis and redeemed at par, brings to $151,000,000 the amount of securities sold by the treasury since the opening of the fiscal year July 1.

The money to be raised will be used to retire $50,000,000 in treasury bills which mature on July 15. Another block totalling $100,000,000 matures on July 27. The issuance of the bills brings to a total of $444,000,000 of that variety of securities now outstanding.

Sharps and Flats

A Department in Which The Editor of The Star Plays His Own Piano

"Why don't the papers write up their news-stories like they did 100 years ago?" a Hope professional man asked me Sunday.

"In reading an old file of papers," he continued, "I was particularly struck by the way crime news was reported. Whenever a murder, a robbery or some other crime of violence was committed, the reporter went on to point out the terrible disgrace visited upon the community in which the outrage occurred."

"Why did the papers change from that style, and why don't they go back to it today?" he asked.

Two things occurred to newspapers to make them change.

Early newspapers were written by men drawn from the other professions. The vast majority of American papers published up to say 1895—the time that William Randolph Hearst and Adolph Ochs went to New York to start modern journalism—were edited by preachers, teachers and lawyers. Most of the editors were preachers and teachers. They drew little distinction between fact and opinion. I do not say that disparagingly. I mean they were very honest about it. Their notion of the world was that facts should be salted down with opinion—something that is still true—but, having very small newspapers, they were compelled to run fact and opinion in the same column, the same story.

Therefore, when a terrible crime occurred the reporter getting his facts was also an editorial writer commenting on the facts he had just gathered—and his story was a combination news-story and editorial.

The rise of modern journalism demanded fact-reporting. Newspapers might still sway public opinion in their editorial columns, but it was demanded of them that they print innumerable columns of pure facts without any of the reporter's opinion getting mixed up in those facts.

Some people, I know, will treat with disdain my contention that modern newspapers have given a trained news-writer to a world that didn't have one 50 or 75 years ago. Here is an example. Luncheon clubs meet all over America at noon. It is nearly 2 p. m. before luncheon is over. A reporter has about 30 minutes to write his story for an afternoon paper—and an hour and a half after the meeting adjourns the story is in print. This is being done by from one to half a dozen news-writers in each of 2,000 American cities every day. If you don't believe me when I say it is something new, try it yourself some day. There was a time when almost any preacher, teacher or lawyer could run a newspaper—and some could today; about as many as there are newspaper men who could acquire themselves creditably in the pulpit, handle a student classroom, or wrestle a while with Blackstone.

Not only did the training of newspaper men change, but their background changed with it. We cannot pick out early newspapers and compare them with the papers of today, without also noting the changes in civilization between the two periods.

Then there were no telegraph wires pouring thousands of words from one section of the country into another.

Your early news-writer may have said that his legal murder case was a disgrace to his community, not only because he desired to express an opinion, but because so far as he knew this was a crime without parallel in any other city.

He knows better today. News has not changed, but by comparison with what the public knows about the crimes of other communities, news has shrunk to mere facts. No reporter would dare express his opinion in the same fragment style of 100 years ago. The charm that you find in the old accounts in the files, would appear too exaggerated and silly if reproduced on the front page today.

Aid of Latin America Discussed By Editor

NEW YORK.—(P)—Wallace Thompson, editor of "Ingenieria Internacional" (International Engineering), discussed the formation of a foreign trade league to carry Latin American commercial credits, as a means of extending aid to Latin American countries.

In a monthly confidential bulletin on Latin American affairs, which Thompson made public Sunday, he states that the problem of extending aid to Latin America in the present financial crisis must be met through help to Latin American trade rather than to governments.

Strange Stories of Eagles Told

Class Birds Learn to Fly Before They Are Hatched

VERMILION, Ohio.—(P)—The national bird of the American eagle is a fitting emblem of the independence of the United States.

Dr. Frank H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Kentucky University, offers the latest contribution to the tradition of the eagle's life.

The American eagle literally learns to fly in the egg, before it is hatched. It is not dependent upon an older bird to lift about, giving it the necessary practice.

Another in germ plasm, the young eagle, he says, is born with the instinct of the egg.

Herrick has spent 10 years in the study of the eagle's life. He has taken into the private life of the eagle, in Vermilion, Ohio, where eagles make their homes for 80 years.

Herrick erected tall towers to their series, watched them during the hours during the nesting season and took still and motion pictures of them; also copious notes.

Only two or three eagles are hatched in the nest at a time, Herrick observed generally only two.

From the earliest age they are fighting, and a little downy nestling has been known to kill its companion.

At home, the eagle, is about five feet across and eight or nine feet high. It is made of limbs an inch to two inches in diameter, and weighing from two to four pounds.

The eagle lasts for several generations until a storm comes from the top of a tall, sturdy tree.

When about eight weeks old the eagle begins hopping from one side of the nest to the other.

When about nine weeks old it rises to a height of 10 feet in the air and circles around the nest many times a day.

During flight practice it takes lessons from its instinct in seizing its prey. The prey is a stick, which it holds upon, holds it in its talons, and would, a fish and soars. When it leaves the nest it is a master of flight; nature does not trust it to fail.

Present birds take no part in the old customs, but during all this practice.

Dr. Herrick found the eagle can stand severe cold, and never migrates unless there is a heavy snow. One eagle, finally bagged by hunter, was found to have 18 shots in its body, the result of many unsuccessful attempts to kill it.

The eagle's realm is a matriarchy. If a female bird loses her mate she goes in search of another. Dr. Herrick found, if a male loses his mate, he waits on the eagle for a female to arrive and claim him.

The bird is extremely rapid in its movements. In photographing it, Dr. Herrick had to use a camera with a shutter opening in one 450th of a second.

"No comebacks"—when you smoke Chesterfields.

The tobaccos are right! Chesterfield uses only mild, ripe, sweet-tasting tobaccos—the best and purest money can buy.

The blend is right! It's an art to put tobaccos together the Chesterfield way—in the exact proportions which bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco type. A science too! For each type of tobacco used must pass rigid laboratory tests for mildness, for aroma, for taste. No raw inferior tobaccos ever find their way into Chesterfield cigarettes!

The manufacture is right. Every Chesterfield is well-filled, well-formed and burns evenly.

The paper is right—in texture, weight and purity. Money can't buy better.

The taste is right. It is not by accident that Chesterfield holds its smokers. They're milder—and yet They Satisfy.
